A SHORT GUIDE TO SUMMER JOB HUNTING

Sure, you deserve to relax a little this summer, but you probably also need to earn a little money. Maybe you're hoping to buy a car, take a trip or save for college. When you're young and lack experience, finding a job can be challenging. So, here are some useful tips:

Lower your expectations. Chances are you may not find that high-paying dream job right away. You might even be competing with experienced people for lower-paying jobs. Don't get discouraged.

Network. You might have heard, "It's not what you know, but who you know." Your connections may be your best resource for finding a job. Let everyone know what kind of job you're looking for, but be open to other opportunities that may come your way.

Get ready. Search online for articles about job hunting and resume writing. Ask questions and practice your interviewing technique with adults who are in the workforce. If there are companies you would like to work for, check out their websites so you'll be better informed about them and ready to "wow" your interviewer with brilliant insights.

Find job openings. Look at online job sites as well as visit sites in town with "Help Wanted" signs in their windows. Check libraries, schools and newspapers. And don't forget to ask around.

Interview with confidence. When you land an interview, dress appropriately for the job you're seeking. Speak clearly and look your interviewer in the eye. It's important to demonstrate people skills as well as professionalism.

Stick to it. Follow up in a week if you don't hear back from the company. Be proactive, but be polite. Finding a job takes determination, patience and persistence. Don't give up.

8 Tips for Making the Most of Your Summer Vacation

First, find a job or a way to make some money that will provide you with cash for summer activities and some savings. (Read “A Short Guide to Summer Job Hunting” in this newsletter.) But make some time for fun. Scope out these ideas to ensure your summer is not a bummer!

1. Enjoy the outdoors. Turn off the TV, put away the video games and unplug every now and then.
2. Be a water baby. Spend time at a beach, lake or pool. Take up water sports or just laze on a raft.
3. Be a sport. Start a pickup game of hoops, play soccer or be a spectator at a local sporting event.
4. Prepare for school. Prep for college admission tests or upcoming classes, read books for English and practice your Spanish. Not a lot, just enough to get a head start when school rolls around.
5. Have a yard sale. You'll get rid of stuff you don't need, meet new people and make some money, too.
6. Start a journal. Write down your thoughts, feelings, dreams, poetry, song lyrics and whatever's happening every day.
7. Go places you can't during the school year. Take a road trip, camp in a national park or forest, visit friends who live far away, go for a hike and ride a bike.
8. Try something new. Take up new hobbies, learn to play guitar, practice yoga – do something you always wanted to, but never had time for.
